

SCHOOL DAY

The school day shall be scheduled in such a way that students are given the best practicable opportunity for development. The length of the day and the arrangement of time segments within it need not be uniform for all schools or for all grade levels. The professional staff is encouraged to use flexibility in designing the daily schedule so long as the following considerations are met:

1. The learning activities of each student are carefully guided and supervised.
2. Each student has opportunities to receive individual assistance from teachers outside of the regular school day.
3. The cost of the transportation system is not increased beyond the amount which would be necessary to operate a fixed, uniform type of school day.
